SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

World Leaders have committed to 17 global goals to achieve extraordinary things in the next 15 years.

We can realize these goals. In all countries. For all people.

If the goals are going to work, everyone needs to know about them. Tell everyone!

For more information, visit:

Welcome to International Week 2016: For A Better World

In 2016, International Week (I-Week) continues its 31 year-long quest for a better world -- its quest to understand global issues that define our era and connect people who can and will make a positive difference.

This year, programming for I-Week revolves around the United Nations' new Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs): 17 ambitious goals that aim to eliminate extreme poverty, fight inequality and injustice, and fix climate change by 2030.

The SDGs were adopted in September by the largest-ever gathering of world leaders at the United Nations Sustainable Development Summit in New York. Unlike their predecessor, the Millennium Development Goals, the SDGs contain a clause of universality. No longer will the principles of sustainable development be directed at "developing" countries alone. The SDGs apply to all signatories and have implications not only for Canada's foreign policy but domestic policy as well.

Our hope is that International Week 2016 is an incubator of ideas and a source of inspiration. We want attendees to walk away with an understanding of our current reality, a vision of what could be, and a sense of the path that connects them. The SDGs mark the beginning of a new chapter in the movement toward global social justice. Be part of it.

This photo exhibit illustrates the courage, strength and resilience of eight torture survivors living in Canada. All bear the in/visible scars of torture, but it has not broken their spirits. Their lived experience strengthens their resolve to take action in support of a torture-free world. Visit the exhibit and support torture survivors as they lobby Canada to agree to the Optional Protocol to the Convention Against Torture.

From January 2 - 15, the exhibit will be at Stanley Milner Library (7 Sir Winston Churchill Square). From January 16 - 31, it will be at the University of Alberta (location to be determined).

SUB Stage, Students' Union Building

Creating a Better World on SUB Stage

Sponsored by the Students' Union and the Global Education Program

This year we ask the University community: How can we connect our artistic and cultural practices to the Sustainable Development Goals? How can poetry, dance, music, fashion, stories and other expressive forms come together to create a better world? It is through these forms, we believe, that we learn to be resilient, to share who we are and to take action toward peace and positive change. Every weekday from noon to 1:00 pm, enjoy student and community performances in a celebration of arts, culture and diversity!

Featuring: Kalki, Kathleen Hughes, Gautam Karnik & Michael Ross, Liam Coady, Tim & Sasha, Reckie Lloyd from Sangea, ShaktiFlow, as well the International Students' Association, Indian Students' Association, Vietnamese Students' Association, International House and many more!

The UN's Sustainable Development Goals: Implications for Canada and the World

Stephen Lewis

Welcome from Dr. David Turpin, President

Keynote Stephen Lewis: Moved to Friday
See website.

The adoption of the UN's Sustainable Development Goals in September 2015 was historic and not just because the goals were adopted by the largest-ever gathering of world leaders. The SDGs break new ground: they marry the global development and environmental agendas, and they establish benchmarks—most especially the benchmark of gender equality—that challenge all signatories. How do we translate the vision of the SDGs into reality? What is Canada's role at home and abroad? Drawing on decades of experience in domestic politics and international cooperation, Stephen Lewis weighs in on what it will take for Canada to lead in the implementation of the UN's Sustainable Development Goals.

Get your free tickets at: globaled.ualberta.ca/iweek

Stephen Lewis is a Professor of Distinction at Ryerson University and a Professor of Practice at the Institute for the Study of International Development at McGill University. He is the co-founder and board chair of the Stephen Lewis Foundation, and the co-founder and co-director of AIDS-Free World, an international advocacy organization.

Stephen Lewis's work with the United Nations has spanned more than two decades. He has held posts such as the UN Secretary-General's Special Envoy for HIV/AIDS in Africa (2001 - 2006), Deputy Executive Director of UNICEF (1995 - 1999) and Canada's Ambassador to the United Nations (1984 - 1988). From 1970 - 1978, Mr. Lewis was leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, during which time he became leader of the Official Opposition.

Mr. Lewis is the author of the best-selling book, Race Against Time. He has been the recipient of numerous prestigious awards, including the Order of Canada and the Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal, and holds 40 honorary doctorates.

In/visible Scars of Torture Marina Nemat

Sponsored by Amnesty International

Marina Nemat was born in 1965 in Tehran, Iran. After the Islamic Revolution of 1979, she was arrested at the age of sixteen. Her "crime": complaining when the math and history lessons in her school were replaced by Koran instruction and political propaganda. She spent more than two years in Evin, a political prison in Tehran, where she was tortured and came very close to execution. Marina will be sharing her remarkable story of courage and how she managed to transform herself from victim to survivor to activist.

Marina Nemat is a vocal advocate of human rights. Born in Iran, she came to Canada in 1991 and has called it home ever since. Marina has received multiple awards for her work, including the inaugural Human Dignity Award from the European Parliament and the Morris Abram Human Rights Award from UN Watch. She speaks regularly about human rights in high schools, universities, and conferences around the world and is passionate in her call for Canada to do everything possible to put an end to torture. Her memoir, Prisoner of Tehran, was published in 2007 and her second book, After Tehran: A Life Reclaimed, in 2010.

"This is the positive side of the world: a constant intermingling that produces new responses to new challenges."

-Eduardo Galeano

QUICK FACTS

The United Nations Convention Against Torture

Purpose: To prevent torture and other acts of inhumane treatment
Adopted by the UN in 1984; ratified by Canada in 1987

Optional Protocol to the Convention Against Torture

Purpose: To establish "a system of regular visits" by independent bodies as another measure of torture prevention
Adopted by the UN in 2002; Canada has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol, despite promising the UN Human Rights Council in 2007 and 2009 that it would consider doing so.

7 Food Security Lessons We Learned From Livestock

Dr. Graham Plastow, Dept. of Agriculture, Food and Nutritional Science, and CEO, Livestock Gentec

Food security is an issue that affects everyone. Governments, industry and organizations are challenged to find ways to meet nutritional needs and fight hunger. Fortunately, individuals around the globe continue to empower people, utilize technology and find innovative ways to feed the world. Join us and hear speakers interviewed on camera about how livestock are crucial to meet the Sustainable Development Goal #2: Zero Hunger.

Projection de « L'art d'Haïti: une force à toute épreuve » (version française de 'Eavesdropping on Souls: A Journey into Haitian Arts', 2015)

Anne-José Villeneuve, Claude Couture, Paulin Mulatris

En 1804, Haïti devient la première république indépendante de population majoritairement noire. Plus de 200 ans après Toussaint Louverture, Dessalines, Christophe et Pétion, on sent toujours l'héritage culturel de la « perle des Antilles » au Canada et à travers la francophonie.

Ce documentaire aborde une dimension rarement présentée dans les médias : l'art d'Haïti à travers le témoignage de ses artistes et de ceux de la diaspora. Un film de Jacqueline-Jean Baptiste, avec la collaboration de plusieurs artistes. Projection suivie d'une discussion sur l'histoire d'Haïti.

The Impact of the UN's Sustainable Developmental Goals on Global Education
Centre for Global Citizenship Education and Research

This workshop critically analyzes the fourth UN Sustainable Developmental Goal: Quality Education. Western nations, as donor nations, envision quality education as the establishment of Western means of schooling. It is crucial to question the goals behind the universalization of Western knowledge and the implications of de-valuing local knowledges and ways of life.

Welcoming Refugees into Our Communities: A Faith Response

Dr. Shelby Haque, Denise Davis Taylor, Theresa Robinson and Jason Shine, UAlberta Interfaith Chaplains Association, with Dr. David Hubert, former director, Edmonton Mennonite Centre for Newcomers; moderated by Rev. Audrey Brooks

This past year, hundreds of thousands of refugees fled war-torn countries and sought refuge elsewhere. How can we support the overwhelming number of refugees who have been displaced from their homes? What can we do to assist with their resettlement in our communities? In this session, chaplains of different faiths outline the response of their communities to refugee needs.

After Paris: COP 21 and Beyond

Dr. Laurie Adkin, Dept. of Political Science; Dr. Lynn Badia, Faculté Saint-Jean; Mike Hudema, Greenpeace; and Dr. Makere Stewart-Harawira, Dept. of Educational Policy Studies and Convenor, Intersections of Sustainability Collaborative Research Network on Climate Change, Water Governance, and the Futures of Communities; moderated by Dr. John Parkins, Dept. of Resource Economics and Environmental Sociology

The United Nations Conference on Climate Change in Paris (COP21) aimed to achieve a legally binding and universal agreement on climate, with the aim of keeping global warming below 2°C. In the end, what did the Conference accomplish? What was included in the agreement and what remains to be done? Drawing on first hand experience at COP21, experts in the field share their insights on the expectations, outcomes and impacts of the world's latest climate agreement.

How to Implement the UN's Sustainable Development Goals Locally

Dorothy Woodman, Dept. of English and Film Studies; Jill Flaman, UAlberta CSL program; Sanaa Mohammed, CSL student; and Nora Hurlburt, Edmonton Mennonite Centre for Newcomers

Community Service-Learning (CSL) at UAlberta links academic coursework to community-based projects with Edmonton non-profit organizations. Students gain hands-on experience working with local organizations to bridge their learning from classroom to real world. Through CSL, students begin to understand the root causes of social change and how they can contribute. This panel discussion explores how local CSL placements can help achieve the UN's Sustainable Development Goals.

New Approaches to Sustainability

Oksana Udovyk, Canadian Institute for Ukrainian Studies; Dr. Nathan Kowalsky, St. Joseph's College; and Dr. Ken Caine, Dept. of Sociology

The UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) advocate for "green, low-carbon growth" based on increased material/resource/energy (MRE) efficiency and a shift toward renewable energy sources. However, supporters of "new" approaches to sustainability argue that growth-based, technological solutions will not stop our dramatic overuse of nature or eradicate inequality and poverty. This session unpacks the assumptions behind the SDGs and explores alternative perspectives on sustainability.

5:00 - 6:20 pm

Conserving and Using Nature's Bounty: How Dietary Diversity Helps Address Malnutrition in Alberta and Around the World

Gina Kennedy, Bioersivity International; Rebecca Ellis, Edmonton and Area Land Trust; Dr. Ellen Goddard, Dr. Brent Swallow and Dr. Brenda Parlee, Dept. of Resource Economics and Environmental Sociology

Much of the triple burden of malnutrition – hunger, micro-nutrient deficiencies, and obesity/overweight – is associated with the world's extreme reliance on a small number of crops and varieties. The wild relatives of these crops and thousands of other food crops are neglected and threatened with extinction. In response, both the UN Sustainable Development Goals and the UN Convention on Biological Diversity encourage the conservation, utilization and sharing of the benefits from diverse and under-utilized food sources. This panel considers cases from Alberta and around the world in which diverse foods are farmed, foraged and integrated into people's diets. Speakers will identify challenges, dilemmas and opportunities.

The Right To Be Cold: Human Rights and Our Changing Climate

Sheila Watt-Cloutier

Sponsored by the Office of Sustainability, the City of Edmonton, UAlberta North and the Global Education Program

Climate change is transforming the Arctic and creating a massive challenge for meeting the UN's new Sustainable Development Goals. Those living in the Arctic face the most extreme consequences of globalization and of climate change. Though we often hear about melting ice and threatened wildlife, it is the human story that can truly galvanize the world to "action for people and planet."

In this globe-spanning talk, join Sheila Watt-Cloutier to understand the crucial connection between climate change and human rights. Going beyond the science and the politics, Sheila shares her firsthand experience living in the Arctic and leading change on the global stage. Drawing on her ancient culture and speaking from a position of strength, Sheila helps audiences find common ground with those most impacted by our changing climate.

Sustainable Development 3.0: Ukrainian Style

Oksana Udovyk, Canadian Institute for Ukrainian Studies

Humanity has never been moving faster or further away from sustainability than it is now. Where are we going to find alternatives? In this time of crisis, we can learn from the grassroots alternatives proposed by people in Ukraine. While marginal in terms of the population engaged, they have the capacity to provide creative and surprisingly modern options for a transition to a low-consumption society and economy.

The lion's share of the global responsibility for hosting refugees continues to be with countries immediately bordering zones of conflict, many of them in the developing world.

Sub-Saharan Africa is host to the largest number of refugees (4.1 million), followed by Asia and Pacific (3.8 million), Europe (3.5 million), the Middle East and North Africa (3.0 million) and the Americas (753,000).

Queering the UN's Sustainable Development Goals: A Community Art Project

Chris Daberer, Institute for Sexual Minority Studies and Services (ISMSS)

Why is there zero mention of sexual and gender diversity in the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)? If these goals are truly to be universally applicable, then Queer (lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans*, and more) people and communities, their lived experiences, challenges, needs, and their roles in prosperity must not be sidelined or silenced! Everyone is welcome to this informal session, where we will “Queer” the SDGs using dialogue and a collaborative art project!

A Gandhian Perspective on the Sustainable Development Goals

Dr. Reva Joshee, Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, University of Toronto; and Colleen Ring, Mahatma Gandhi Canadian Foundation for World Peace

Revisit some of the core principles of Gandhi's teachings and consider their applicability to many of the global crises that we are now facing. As Martin Luther King Jr. observed, "If humanity is to progress, Gandhi is inescapable. He lived, thought and acted, inspired by the vision of humanity evolving toward a world of peace and harmony. We ignore him at our own risk." As we grapple with increasing social malaise and widespread environmental degradation, we may be surprised at how relevant Gandhi's vision continues to be.

The Poverty of Multiculturalism: Towards an Anti-Racist Pedagogy

Alexandru Caldararu, NorQuest College

Today's educators must go "beyond" a multicultural approach if they are to be effective in helping racialized learners become successful students. By examining how cultural differences in the classroom can be effectively "managed," multiculturalism prevents dialogue about structural racism and reinforces the systems of oppression and domination it claims to undermine. This session will help participants move towards a personal anti-racist pedagogy.

Jhankaar, INDSA's biggest event of the year, is a cultural extravaganza that showcases the beauty and diversity of India. Featuring classical dance and music alongside Bollywood moves and beats, Jhankaar explores India's vast cultural geography and rich cultural history. In past years, Jhankaar has also showcased other cultural traditions, hosting performers from Nigeria, Brazil, Sri Lanka, Ireland and Ukraine, and the tradition continues again this year. Don't miss it! Jhankaar is a guaranteed treat for the eyes, ears and heart.
